Pat Brady was a three sports athlete at O'Dea, earning varsity letters in football, basketball and baseball. While at O'Dea, Brady had a punt of 75-yards versus Everett HS in 1943, the longest punt in Washington State high school history. Brady went on to attend the University of Nevada, Reno where he had a 99-yard punt versus Loyola Los Angeles, the longest possible under the rules and a NCAA record that has never been tied. He completed his collegiate careers at Bradley University in 1951 and later went on to play for the Pittsburgh Steelers. He led the NFL in punting average for five years, from 1952 through 1956, until an injury ended his football career. Brady was inducted into the Bradley University Hall of fame, the University of Nevada Hall of Fame, named to the University of Nevada "Team of the Century," and named to the Pittsburgh Steelers 50th Anniversary team. Brady died on July 14, 2009 in Reno, Nevada.

Royal Brougham, then sports editor for the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, called Courage "the best [running] back in O'Dea history" up to that date. Courage was named to the "Best of the Decade" list by the league's coaches. Upon graduation, Courage joined the United States Navy in 1944. After his service ended, Courage played football for Santa Clara University and later signed a pro baseball contract with Portland of the Pacific Coast League.
